Jackie Kay

Writer of fiction, poetry and plays

Join captivating writer and performer Jackie Kay as she reads her latest poetry, shares stories and answers questions.

The experience of being adopted by and growing up with a white family inspired her first collection of poetry 'The Adoption Papers' in 1991 and her 1998 debut novel 'Trumpet' won The Guardian Fiction Prize. Her work is influenced by themes of identity, love and loss, imbued with music, especially the rhythms of jazz and blues.
